PUBLISHERS' PREFACE.

THE new series of law reports commenced in 1936, the All England Law Reports Annotated, continues to supply the profession with a number of valuable decisions not reported in any other series. These are digested in this Supplement of the "English and Empire Digest" and provide precedents for various points not otherwise covered by authority.

The right to damages for shortened expectation of life given by the Law Reform (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act, 1934, has now been considered by the House of Lords in Rose v. Ford, NEGLIGENCE, No. 953c, and a decision given in favour of the survivorship of this cause of action. The amount of damages under this head has also been considered in Roach v. Yates, NEGLIGENCE, No. 835b, where the plaintiff had become a lunatic, and in Trubyfield v. Great Western Ry. Co., NEGLIGENCE, No. 953g, a case of injury to a young child.

Attention may be drawn to two important decisions of the House of Lords, Andrews v. Director of Public Prosecutions, STREET TRAFFIC, No. 222f; and Fender v. Mildmay, CONTRACT, No. 2190b. The first relates to the proper direction to be given to the jury on a charge of manslaughter by the dangerous driving of a motor car; and the second, relating to the validity of a promise to marry by a married person, given after a decree nisi, contains a valuable review of the doctrine of public policy.

Two other cases of interest are Melksham Urban District Council v. Wiltshire County Council, HIGHWAYS, No. 645a, the first decision under the Restriction of Ribbon Development Act, 1935, and King v. Bull, TELEGRAPHS, No. 61a, which decided a point of some importance in regard to modern blocks of flats, namely, that where a central wireless is installed licences must be taken out by the individual tenants in order to comply with the Wireless Telegraphy Act, 1904.

MEANING OF TERMS

USED IN CLASSIFYING ANNOTATING CASES.

THE different expressions used to describe the effect of the annotating cases have the following meanings, and the classification of the annotating cases has been done strictly in accordance with these meanings. The annotating cases, except such as are classified as "Mentioned," are grouped according to the points in the case which they annotate: within these groups they are listed chronologically, except such as are classified as "Referred to," which come at the end of the group and are arranged inter se in chronological order. Cases which annotate the annotated case generally are grouped together after cases which annotate specific points, similarly arranged, and are followed by cases classified as "Mentioned" arranged chronologically inter se. The terms used in classifying the annotating cases are as follows:—

"APPLIED" (Apld.).—This expression is used to denote the fact that the principle of law enunciated in the annotated case has been applied to a new set of facts and circumstances in the annotating case.

"APPROVED" (Apprvd.).—This expression is used to denote the fact that the annotated case has been considered to be good law in the annotating case where the latter is in a higher court than the former.

"CONSIDERED" (Consd.).—This expression is used where the remarks in the annotating case are devoid of adverse criticism and merely denote the giving of more or less careful consideration to the annotated case.

"DISTINGUISHED" (Distd.).—This expression is used where the earlier case is not necessarily doubted, but where some essential difference (either on the facts or in law) between it and the annotated case is pointed out.

"DOUBTED" (Dbtd.).—This expression is used where the court in the annotating case without definitely going to the length of saying that the annotated case is wrong, adduces reasons which seem to show that it is not accurate.

"EXPLAINED" (Expld.).—This expression is used where the earlier case is not necessarily doubted, but the decision arrived at is justified or accounted for by calling attention to some point of fact or of law which is usually, but not necessarily, one not obvious on the face of the report.

"EXTENDED" (Extd.).—Compare "APPLIED," supra.

"FOLLOWED" (Folld.).—This expression is used to denote that the same principles of law are applied in the two cases. It does not necessarily imply that the facts are substantially identical in the two cases.

"NOT FOLLOWED" (N.F.).—Compare "FOLLOWED," supra, to which it is the adverse.

"OVERRULED" (Overd.).—This expression is used where the annotating case is on substantially identical facts with the annotated case and in a higher court and the rule in the latter case is held to be wrong.

"REFERRED" (Refd.).—This expression is used only where the annotating case deals with the point of the Digest paragraph and is without comment of any definite character on the case annotated, and where there is no delicate shade of approval or disapproval which would justify the use of any of the foregoing words.

"MENTIONED" (Mentd.).—This expression is used only where none of the foregoing terms apply. In other words, it is used only where the case annotated is cited on a point having nothing to do with the point in the Digest paragraph.

18b. —— —— ——.]—The appeal began with a preliminary objection by counsel for resps. that the appeal was out of time, because fourteen days' notice had not been given. In the Mersey Docks cases (No. 18a, ante) that we have just concluded, we unfortunately spent two or three hours in considering whether the time was fourteen days or six weeks. The reasons for our decision will appear wher at some later time we give the considered judgment in the Mersey Docks case, but I have the authority of my brothers for stating that at present, for reasons which will appear in the Mersey Docks judgment, the majority of the ct. is of opinion that the time, is fourteen days (SCRUTTON, L.J.).—WILKINSON (TAUNTON REVENUE OFFICER) v. SIBLEY & DONOVAN, [1932] 1 K. —— ——.]—The Food Controller requisitioned certain cattle feeding stuffs under Defence of the Realm Regulations, but whether under reg. 2 B. or reg. 2 F. was doubtful. By reg. 2 B. the price to be paid for goods taken thereunder was to be determined by the tribunal by which claims for compensation under Defence of the Realm Regulations were determined, but was not to exceed a certain maximum price fixed by an Ord. in Council. By reg. 2 F. compensation for goods taken thereunder was to be paid as determined by an arbitrator, taking into account the cost of production of the goods & a reasonable profit. The maximum price fixed by the Ord. in Council has been paid. The Defence of the Realm Losses Commission having refused to entertain a claim for compensation, the owners of the goods presented a petition of right, claiming that the Food Controller had acted under reg. 2 F., & that they were entitled to compensation fixed by arbn. thereunder. At the trial the judge held that the Controller had acted under reg. 2 B., & dismissed the petition. On July 22, 1920, suppliants gave notice of appeal. On Aug. 16, 1920, Indemnity Act, 1920 (c. 48), was passed :—Held : (1) the appeal was not a "proceeding instituted" within sect. 1 of the Act; (2) those words do not include a final judgment given before the passing of the Act, & therefore the appeal well lay.—ROBINSON (J.) & Co. v. R., [1921] 3 K. sa. Action—Claim for damages & injunction—Transfer of Land Act, 1893 (No. 14), s. 117.]—The term "action at law" in the above sect. embrances an action of the nature of a suit in equity, e.g. a claim for an injunction & damages in respect of trespass to & interference with a right of way.—STRELITZ BROTHERS v. BRITNALL (1912), 15 W. A. L. R. 12.—AUS.

sb. —— Divorce petition—Insolvency Act, 1915 (No. 2671), s. 174.]—The word "action" in the above sect. does not include a proceeding by petition in divorce.—Re HARVEY, [1920] V. L. R. 142.—AUS.

sc. —— Petition of right.]—A petition of right is not an "action." The definitions of "actions" in Judicature Act & rules are merely a conventional method of interpreting the statute & rules, adopted for the sake of brevity & simplicity, & not for the purpose of changing the true nature of things.—MILLAR v. R., [1921] 49 O. L. R. 93; 19 O. W. N. 458; 58 D. L. R. 585.—CAN.

sd. Proceeding in action—Application for relief against distraint—War Relief Act.]—The above Act empowers a judge of the Supreme Ct. to dispense with the restrictions therein contained. Applt. distrained against resp. under a mtge. notwithstanding that resp. was within the protection of the Act. Resp. applied to a county ct. judge as "local judge" of the Supreme Ct. for relief, who made an order against resp. dispensing with the restrictions of the Act :—Held : the local judge had no jurisdiction, as the proceeding was not a proceeding in an "action," as required under the wording of the Ord. in Council, June 16, 1906. Resp.'s proper remedy against applt. was by injunction to restrain applt. from invading his rights under the Act.—HANNA v. COSTERTON, [1919] 1 W.W.R. 930; 44 D. L. R. 478.—CAN.

se. Proceeding — Canadian National Railways Act, s. 15.]—A writ of garnishment attaching moneys owed by the Canadian National Railway Corpn. to a judgment debtor in its employment is a "proceeding" within Canadian National Railways Act, s. 15, & may therefore issue "without a fiat" from the Crown.—CANADIAN NATIONAL RY. sf. Suit or proceeding—Meaning dependent on context of statute.]—The words "suits" & "proceedings" have different meanings in different statutes, & it is not possible to lay down a general rule which would be applicable to all cases. In each particular case the question has to be examined in reference to the context, & that meaning is to be preferred which will best fit in with it.—KIRPA SINGH v. AJAIPAL SINGH (1928), I. L. sg. Suit or action—Application by curator bonis.]—An application by the curator bonis of a person who has been declared incapable of managing his affairs for the appointment of a curator ad litem & for leave to institute proceedings to set aside the marriage of such a person is a civil suit or action within South Africa Act, s. 103.—MITCHELL v. MITCHELL, [1930] App. D. 217.—S. a district ct. action did not arise in one judicial district the action should be brought in that district where deft. or one of several defts. resides or carries on business. Notwithstanding sect. 2, sub-sect. 2 (2), of the Act providing that in the Act unless there is something in the subject or context repugnant thereto the expressions "cause" & "action" shall respectively have the same meaning as the same expressions have in King's Bench Act, the words "the cause of action" in sect. 29 should not be construed in the same way as in King's Bench Act, s. 35, because in sect. 29 "there is something in the subject or context repugnant thereto," namely, the fact that sect. 29 confers jurisdiction on an inferior ct. & therefore must be strictly construed, jurisdiction not being assumed beyond what is clearly conferred, whereas a different principle applies in sect. 35 which does not affect to deal with jurisdiction but simply deals with practice & procedure in a superior ct.—HOWELL v. WARNER, [1921] 3 W. This order B. transmitted to his principal in Melbourne, who declined it, but authorised B. to inform deft. that pltf. would accept the order at increased prices, added in ink on the original order. These new prices were subsequently submitted by B. to deft., who agreed to take certain of the goods at the increased prices. By the contract the goods were to be delivered f.o.b. Pltf. shipped the goods to deft. in Perth, who refused to accept the draft, alleging inferiority of the goods:—Held: the contract was made in Perth; & the only breach of the contract took place in Perth; & although delivery had to be made f.o.b. sq. Police watch on business premises.]—In an action brought by a woman against a chief constable, to recover damages for injury to her reputation & business resulting from defender's alleged illegal actings, it appeared that defender, after endeavouring without success to communicate with one of his inspectors who, having gone on holiday, had, in breach of police regulations, not left his proper address, had received information regarding the movements of pursuer & the inspector which led him to suspect that the latter was sheltering in pursuer's house. As pursuer refused to answer any question regarding the inspector, defender directed a watch for the inspector to be kept on pursuer's house. This watch was maintained day & night for five days by police constables stationed in private property & in a lane adjacent to pursuer's house & grounds. damage upon another by the intentional employment of unlawful means, such as threats of coercive action, to injure that person's business, even though the unlawful means may not comprise any specific act which is per se actionable & actual malice is not proved. The element of conspiracy in a case of this kind is of importance only in considering the weight of the acts alleged & the extent of the damage resulting therefrom.

Defts., the British Medical Association, a body incorporated for the purpose of maintaining "the honour & interests of the medical profession," & other defts., who were members of the Association, instituted & pursued a system of professional & social ostracism or boycott against pltfs., who were medical men, by means of threats & widely extended coercive action. Defts. sought to justify the boycott on the ground that the conduct of pltfs. in acting as the medical officers of a certain medical dispensary was detrimental to the honour & interests of the profession. As a result of the boycott pltfs. suffered pecuniary loss in the exercise of their profession :—Held : pltfs. had a good cause of action against all defts. for damages.—PRATT v. BRITISH MEDICAL ASSOCN., [1919] 1 K. 257a. ——.]—A number of discharged sailors entered into a partnership according to the terms of which the sailors were to perform together at certain music halls & were not to appear during the terms of the partnership in any other theatre or music hall. Pltfs., who were members of the co., complained that the deft. had induced certain of the sailors to break the contract by promising to get them employment & by obtaining other engagements for them. By amendment it was further alleged that deft. had wrongfully continued persons in her employment with the knowledge that by being in her employment those persons were breaking a contract with pltfs. :—Held : assuming an action lies to recover damages on the latter ground, the foundation of this action is that there shall be notice to deft. of a subsisting contract which one party, at all events, is still willing & able to perform ; & there being sufficient evidence before the county ct. judge that the partnership had for all practical purposes come to an end, no action lay.—LONG v. SMITHSON (1918), 88 L. The claim was based upon an alleged agreement between the parties & also upon orders alleged to have been made by the Paper Comptroller appointed by the Canadian Government in Nov. 1917 :—Held : although pltf. co. sustained a substantial loss of profit by reason of its having been compelled by the Government to supply the Western Canadian publishers with newsprint at prices fixed by the Comptroller when it could have been sold to limited states customers at higher prices, & was thus compelled to bear the burden, which should have been shared by some of defts. the ct. had no jurisdiction to compel an adjustment of pltf. co.'s claim by those defts. who shirked their fair share of the burden.—FORT FRANCES PULP CO. v. SPANISH RIVER PULP CO., [1928] 1 D. 258 ii. —— Heightened fence.]—Applt. & resp. owned & resided upon adjoining properties. In 1925 resp. erected an 8 ft. iron fence or hoarding on the boundary between the properties. In 1929 resp. raised the fence to a height of 18 ft. in order to shield his lavatory from the view of an attic window which applt. had erected. On the day the work of heightening was started applt. notified resp. that, as the fence could not be erected without a trespass being committed, he would sue for damages if the work were proceeded with. A few days later applt. obtained an interdict restraining resp. from trespassing on his land. Applt. then instituted the present action, claiming damages on the ground that resp. had maliciously by himself, his servants and/or workmen trespassed upon the land for the purpose of erecting a hoarding on the boundary. It was proved that on one occasion a 259a. —— Damage by rats.]—A firm of artificial manure manufacturers had on their premises, for the purposes of their business, a heap of bones which attracted rats. The occupier of adjoining premises was a farmer. The rats made runs between the factory & the fields & entered the farmer's land, & damaged his crops. The business had been carried on for at least thirty years, & there was no evidence to show that the bone heap had been increased beyond what it had been in past years, or anything to show that an increase which had actually taken place in the numbers of the rats was due to anything done by the manufacturers. In an action by the farmer against the manufacturers:—Held: in the absence of evidence showing that there had been an unusual & excessive collection of bones on the factory premises, or of anything unusual or excessive done by defts., or of any duty neglected by defts., pltf. could not maintain an action for damages.—STEARN v. PRENTICE BROTHERS, LTD., [1919] 1 K. 274a. Procuring judgment for debt already paid—No malice.]—Pltf., a chemist, owed defts. a debt of £3 11*s.* 4*d.*, & paid it. Defts. overlooked the fact of this payment & issued civil process against pltf. who, when served, pointed out to defts. their mistake. Defts. apologised & wrote: "We are immediately communicating with our agency." On the day of trial defts., the then pltfs., appeared by a solr. & obtained judgment for £3 11*s.* 4*d.* Pltf., the then deft., did not attend or appear. The fact of the judgment was published in a county newspaper. About eight months later the judgment, at the instance of the present pltf. was set aside. Pltf. brought an action claiming (inter alia) damages in tort against defts. for procuring this judgment. Pltf. in his evidence stated that his profits during the year following the judgment were diminished by £95, & during the next year by £105. He attributed this falling off to the judgment & its publication:—Held: the cause of action in tort, if any, was the malicious issue of civil process against pltf. There was no evidence of malice, & the supposed damages were irrecoverable.—CORBETT v. BURGE, WARREN & RIDGLEY, LTD. (1932), 48 T. L. R. 626.

376b. —— ——.]—In 1916 a Russian Govt. Committee, of which deft. was a member, was set up in London by the Imperial Russian Govt. & continued by its successor, the Russian Provisional Govt., & the committee, which incurred large financial obligations, had possession of certain documents, which related to those obligations & were the property of those Govts. The committee ceased to operate in 1918, & the documents were handed over to a board of trustees appointed by the Chargé d'Affaires of the Russian Provincial Govt., & deft. became president of the board. The documents had become the property of pltfs., the present Russian Govt., whose sovereignty had been recognised by the British Govt., but they were still in the possession of deft. Certain actions were pending against deft. as a member of the Russian Govt. Committee with regard to the transactions to which the documents related. Pltfs. claimed the delivery up of the documents, & deft. contended that he was entitled to a lien on the documents until he had received an indemnity in respect of the other actions, & he set up the contention by way of defence & counterclaim :—Held : although where a sovereign state was a pltf. a counterclaim could be maintained against it, yet the counterclaim must be in respect of matters immediately connected with the claim, & as the indemnity sought by deft. was not in respect of any liability incurred by him in & about the custody of the documents, & was not in respect of matters immediately connected with the claim, the action succeeded & the counterclaim failed.—SOVIET REPUBLICS UNION v. BELAIEW (1925), 134 L. 387a. —— Notwithstanding restrictions on exercise of sovereign rights.]—(1) It is the settled practice of the ct. to take judicial notice of the status of any foreign Govt., & for that purpose, in any case of uncertainty, to seek information from a Secretary of State; & the information so received is conclusive.

(2) A Govt. recognised as sovereign by His Majesty's Govt. is not the less exempt from the jurisdiction of our cts. because it has agreed to restrictions on the exercise of its sovereign rights.

By a deed dated in July, 1912, the Govt. of Kelantan granted to applt. co. certain mining & other rights to be exercised in that State, & the deed contained an arbn. clause, which incorporated Arbn. Act, 1889 (c. 49), so far as applicable. Disputes having arisen as to the effect of the deed, they were referred to an arbitrator, who made an award in favour of the co. & directed the Govt. to pay the costs of the arbn. In Dec. 1921, the Govt. applied to the Ch. Div., under Arbn. Act, 1889, s. 11, to set aside the award, but the application was refused. In June, 1922, the co. obtained from the K. B. Div., under sect. 12 of the Act, an order giving leave to enforce the award, but the order was set aside, on the application of the Govt., on the ground that Kelantan was a sovereign independent State. Before setting aside the order the master asked the Secretary of State for the Colonies for information as to the status of Kelantan, & received in reply an official letter stating that Kelantan was an independent State & its Sultan the sovereign ruler thereof, & that the King did not exercise or claim any rights of sovereignty over Kelantan, & enclosing an agreement regulating the relations between the Sultan

& the King. By this agreement the Sultan agreed to have no political relations with any foreign power except through the medium of the King, & in all matters of administration, other than those touching the Mohammedan religion & Malay custom, to follow the advice of an adviser appointed by the King:—Held: (1) the statement in the letter as to the sovereignty of Kelantan & its rulers was not intended to be qualified by the terms of the agreement, & the letter was conclusive; (3) the Govt. of Kelantan had not submitted to the jurisdiction of the ct. for the purpose of the proceedings to enforce the award, either by assenting to the arbn. clause or by applying to the ct. to set aside the award.—DUFF DEVELOPMENT CO. v. KELANTAN GOVERNMENT, [1924] A. 392a. —— ——.]—(1) In proceedings in the cts. of this country by or against the ruler of a colonial State whose status is disputed a written statement by the Secretary of State for the Colonies that the ruler is an independent foreign sovereign is equivalent to a communication from the Crown &, therefore, conclusive, & the ct. will accept it without considering whether it is borne out by documents which are appended to it.

In an arbn. in this country between pltf. co. & the Govt. of Kelantan an award was made in favour of the co. with costs The Govt. of Kelantan then moved to set aside the award & this motion was dismissed with costs. An appeal from this decision was also dismissed with costs. No portion of these costs had been paid. The co. obtained a garnishee order nisi to attach money in the hands of the Crown agents of the Colonies on behalf of the Govt. of Kelantan. Upon an application by the co. for payment by the garnishees the Govt. of Kelantan & the Crown agents appeared together & contended that Kelantan was an independent sovereign State & the ct. had no jurisdiction to execute the orders for costs by a levy on the property of that State:—Held: (2) although the Govt. of Kelantan had, by initiating proceedings to set aside the award of the arbitrator, submitted to the jurisdiction of the ct., (3) that submission had not the effect of rendering liable to execution any property belonging to the Govt. within the jurisdiction. —DUFF DEVELOPMENT CO. v. KELANTAN GOVERNMENT, [1923] 1 Ch. 385; 92 L. 504 iii. —— —— —— ——.]—No hard & fast rule can be laid down to indicate the considerations by which a ct. ought to be guided in considering the question of the stay of a criminal proceeding, pending the disposal of a civil suit, & each case must be determined upon its own facts. Even if some or all the matters materially in issue are the same, that in itself cannot be a reason for staying the criminal proceedings. One test is whether the prosecution is public or private. 504 iv. —— —— ——.]—The rule that where pltf. sues in respect of a wrong which is a tort & also a felony, deft. should be prosecuted in respect of the felony before the civil action is heard, does not make such criminal prosecution an indispensable condition precedent to the right to maintain the civil action. In its modern application the rule is merely suspensory of the civil rights, & is subject to the exercise of judicial discretion. In exercising such discretion the ct. may consider circumstances, such as the infancy, ignorance, or poverty of pltf., which may afford excuse for the failure to prosecute in respect of the felony. Where pltf. has obtained a verdict in the civil action, the ct., on motion for a new trial or for judgment, may consider the circumstance that between verdict & motion deft. has been prosecuted in respect of the felony.—CARLISLE v. ORR (No. 2), [1918] 2 I. On a subsequent day the judge of the division ct. heard argument as to whether the action should be proceeded with before the criminal charge was taken up; he decided that it should, & fixed a day for trial, but on Dec. 10, 1920, neither the action nor the criminal proceeding having been tried, an order was made by a judge of the Supreme Ct. of Ontario, upon the application of defts., prohibiting the judge of the division court from proceeding in the action until after the final disposition of the criminal prosecution. Pltf. appealed from this order, & before the completion of the argument of the appeal pltf. was tried upon the criminal charge & acquitted :—Held : the division ct. judge had the right, the claim & counterclaim being within the jurisdiction of the ct., to stay proceedings or otherwise deal with the case; & prohibition did not lie, even if the judge erred in the conclusion to which he came.—Re BRYANT v. CITY DAIRY CO.
